Edugion

XN Rising Project

PROJECT DETAILS

Candidates:

- Sunjit Dhillon, MS CS Align Student, Northeastern University, Boston.
- Shuaizhen Li, MS CS Student, Northeastern University, Seattle.

Goals:

- To create a visually appealing, secure and innovative job portal that is easy to navigate and has an easy hiring process.
- The portal must address additional aspects of a candidate on top of conventional resumes and cover letters.
- The portal design must not just be limited to a particular country or a specific section of job-seekers, rather it should take into account the requirements of job seekers from a global perspective.
- Innovative features must be added to the portal to make it stand out from the current job portals in the market.

Platform used:

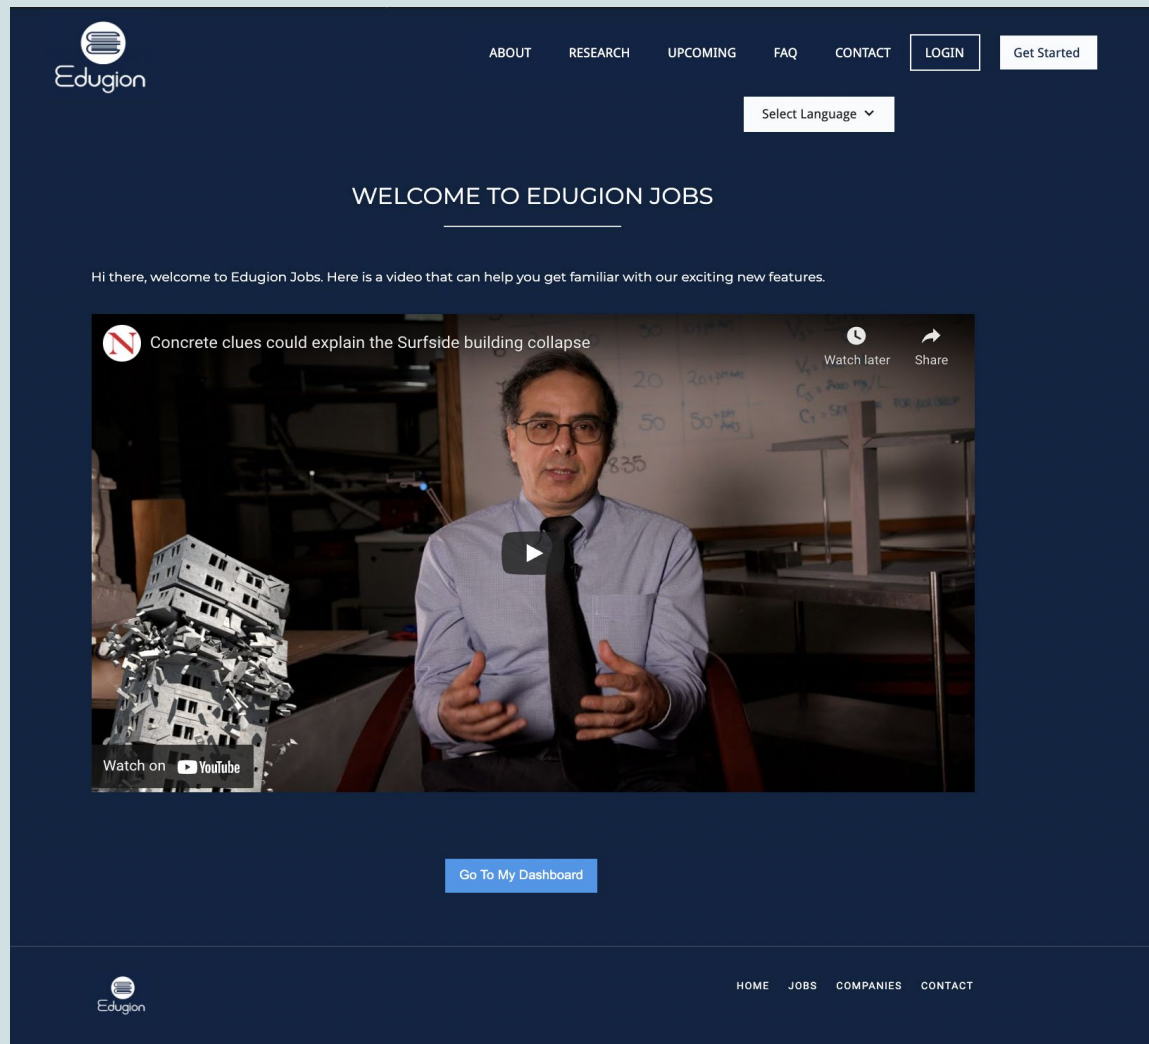

Webflow was used for designing pages for the job portal.

JOB PORTAL

- A job portal with unique, innovative features.
- Enables job seekers to easily navigate and search for their dream jobs, connect with employers, recruiters and receive updates about job postings.
- Ensures a smooth hiring process for the recruiters and employers.
- The traditional resumes, cover letters and online forms make the job application process much impersonal and disconnected from individuals. Through this job portal, the candidates can also express their relevant skills set through video resumes and sharing their social media profiles.
- Allows the recruiters/employers to know more about the candidate, their interests, hobbies, soft skills and other relevant skills/traits which the candidate wishes to highlight.
- The portal features/parameters are not limited to a particular country or a specific section of job-seekers, rather it takes into account the requirements of job seekers from a global perspective.

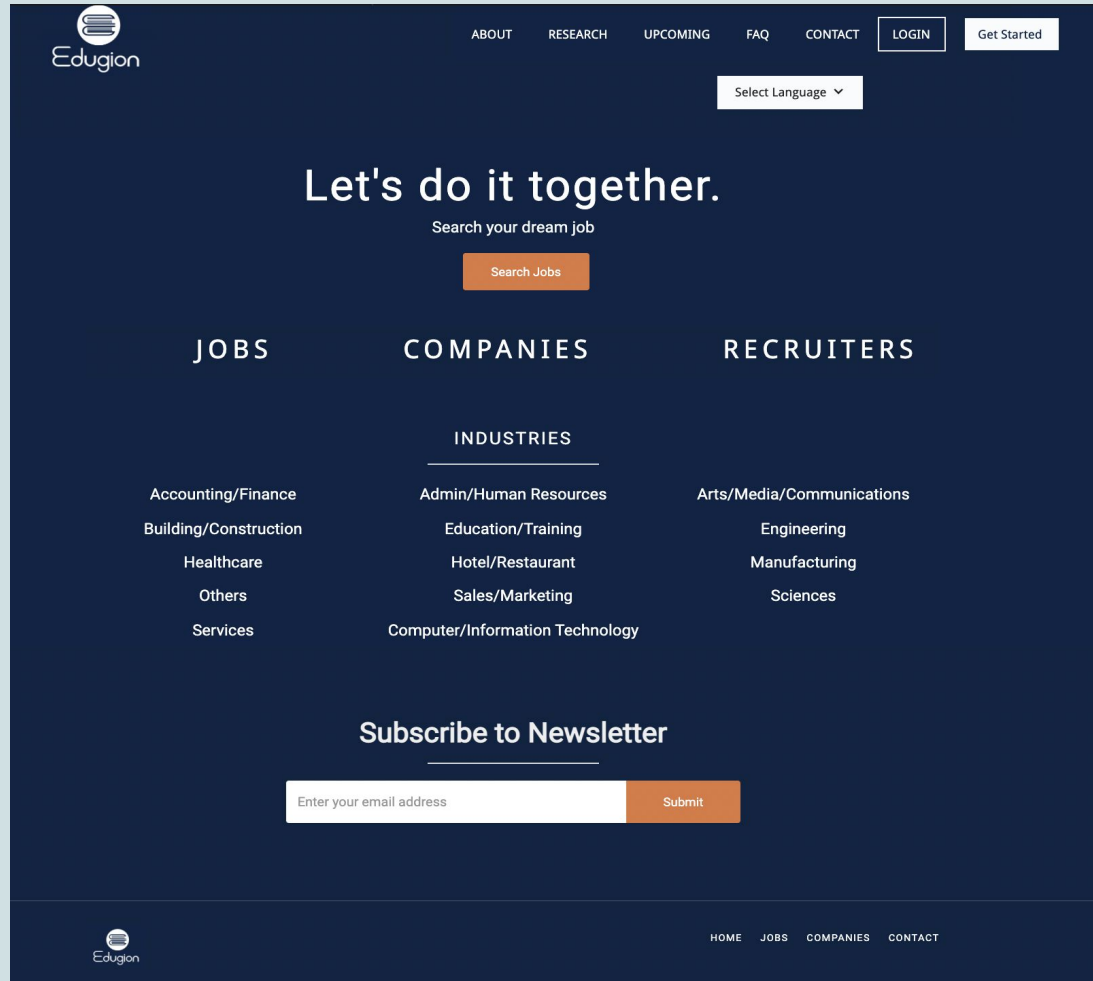

LANDING PAGE

- The company's main website (still under construction by the company) has an option to allow users to jump to the job portal.
- This is the landing page which would be displayed as the user transitions from the main website to the job portal.
- The main navigation menu is connected to components on the company's main website (not part of this project).
- As the company's goal is to provide benefits of this site to global users, all webpages have an option to select language.
- The navigation menu, links, fonts, color schema are chosen such that they align with the company's main website.
- A sample video has been placed in this view for now. This would be replaced by another video (still in making by the company) which would highlight all the features of the job portal.

HOME PAGE

- The Home Page allows job-seekers, employers and recruiters to navigate through the job portal.
- The “Jobs” link leads to the Job Board page from where the candidates can search for jobs by location, skills, industries and other filters.
- Similarly, the “Companies” and “Recruiters” link allow potential candidates to directly browse jobs by companies or postings through various recruiters.
- The ‘Industries’ have been displayed as per North American Industry Classification System (NAICS). Clicking on industry would lead to the Job Board with jobs filtered as per the selected industry. Further the user can also apply sub-industry filters through the Job Board.
- This page has an option for users to subscribe to Newsletter to stay updated with the latest activities, news, and postings from employers, other users and subscribers.

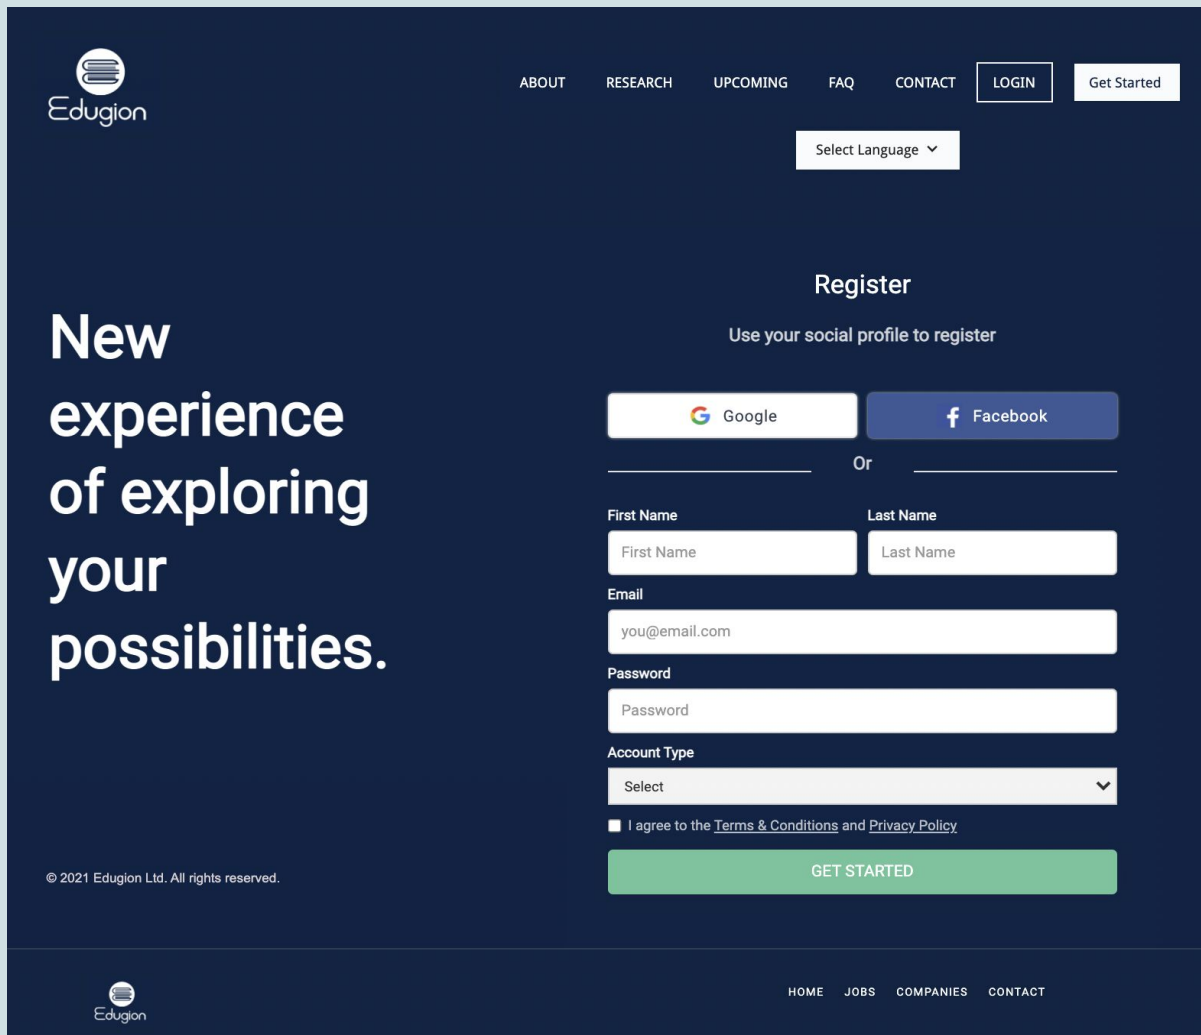

REGISTER ACCOUNT PAGE

- This page allows job-seekers, employers as well as recruiters to create accounts.
- The users can also create accounts by connecting through their Google or Facebook profiles.
- The users can enter their basic information on this page and get started with the job portal.
- The Account Type drop-down option classifies users as “Job-seekers”, “Recruiters” or “Employers”. This would make it easier to carry operations as per user type in the back-end.
- After the user registers and creates their account, they are directed to the ‘Create Profile’ page where they can add more information into their profiles.

The screenshot shows the Edugion website's registration page. The header includes the Edugion logo, navigation links (ABOUT, RESEARCH, UPCOMING, FAQ, CONTACT), and buttons for LOGIN and Get Started. A language selection dropdown is also present. The main heading is 'New experience of exploring your possibilities.' The registration section is titled 'Register' and includes the instruction 'Use your social profile to register'. It features buttons for Google and Facebook login, an 'Or' separator, and input fields for First Name, Last Name, Email, and Password. Below these is an 'Account Type' dropdown menu with a 'Select' option. A checkbox for 'I agree to the Terms & Conditions and Privacy Policy' is present. A large green 'GET STARTED' button is at the bottom. The footer contains the copyright notice '© 2021 Edugion Ltd. JOB-SEEKER : CREATE PROFILE PAGE

- After the job-seeker registers for an account, they are guided to this page to collect more information for their profile.
- As the users across the world follow different name styles, the job portal ensures that the profile allows the user to enter their correct name. After researching various naming conventions, this style of naming has been finalised.
- Similarly, different formats for dates are followed in various countries. To avoid any ambiguity, the international format defined by ISO (ISO 8601) has been followed for 'Date of Birth' field.
- In addition, countries across the world may further be divided by 'States' (Example: India) or 'Provinces' (Example: Canada) or 'Territories' (Example: France). So, in future we plan to make changes to the webpage by connecting to the database such that only the respective fields are displayed on the page after the user enters their country name.
